STILL AFTER REDMOND

POLICE HAVE HOPE OF CATCHING THE ALLEGED MURDERER.

The Interesting Story of How Redmond Was Recognized While Serving in the Rough Riders as Michael Seville.

No effort is being spared by the police authorities to effect the capture of Jim Redmond, wanted for the murder of Miss Emma Schumacher. Detective Boyle is still in New York and Jersey City, and he writes Chief Hayes that every possible aid is being given him by the authorities there, and there is little possibility of Redmond getting away. Colonel Roosevelt, who was for several years the head of the board of police commissioners of New York city, is very anxious to catch the man, not only because he is wanted in this city, but be-cause he is also now a deserter from the army. With both the federal and the local authorities after him, it seems that he stands little chance of getting away.

The Jersey City Evening Journal, of August 20, has the following account, which bears out the exclusive statements of The Journal in all substantial particulars:

"The police authorities of this city to-day made public the fact that one of the members of the rough riders, which were quartered last week in the Fourth regiment artered last week in the Fourth regiment archarge of murder. Acting Chief of Police William H. Lange has been endeavoring to arrest the man since Monday, and this morning he received word that the criminal had escaped from Camp Wikoff, Montauk Point. gust 20, has the following account, which Early last Monday morning Frank Tres. "Early last Monday morning Frank Aves-trail, a barber of 257 West Side avenue, called on Acting Chief Lange at his home and told him that he had seen a man in the uniform of a rough rider who was wanted at Kansas City for the murder of a young woman. Trestrail had worked in the West and had shaved the murderer on several occasions. As soon as he entered the armory he recognized the soldier as James Redmond, alias 'Coleman,' who is wanted for the murder of Miss Schumacher in Kansas City last December 8. The woman was robbed.

"Trestrail quickly turned back and cov-

"Trestrall quickly turned back and covered up his face, so that the soldier would not recognize him. He immediately communicated with Acting Chief Lange, who sent the following dispatch to Chief of Police Hayes, of Kansas City:

"Do you want Redmond in murder case? Frank Trestrail says he is here among rough riders. Answer quick."

"The following telegram was received in perfect."

"The following telegram was received in reply:

"Redmond wanted badly here; age 30; 5 feet 8½ inches, 165 pounds, sandy hair and complexon buckshot in forehead at edge of hair. He has tattooed on his left forearm a ballet girl with a fag in her hand, and on his right forearm a sailor, anchor, tombstone and weeping willow. He has a wart on the left side of neck and may have a shot wound under the mouth. Wire or arrest.

"Detectives McNally and Prescott were detailed on the case and spent Monday and Tuesday watching the rough riders. They found out that Redmond, who was known as 'Michael Seville,' was a private in Company I and had been on a furlough, but had come back. He was identified from the description and was later pointed out to them. Acting Chief Lange informed Captain McGinnis of the trooper's record and was told by the commandant that he would turn the man over to the civic authorities as soon as the warrant arrived for his arrest.

"Last Tuesday a telegram was received from the Kansas City police authorities, stating that Redmond or 'Seville' should be sent immediately. An officer started the next day armed with requisition papers from the governor of Missouri. Captain McGinnis refused to surrender the soldier except on presentation of an order from the war department.

"Acting Chief Lange saw Redmond march away with his comrades last Tuesday morning, and immediately tried to telephone to Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, but the regiment's commander was detained at Quarantine and could not be reached. Before the rough riders marched away he sent the following dispatch to Major General Young, who is in command at Camp Wikoff, Montauk Point, L. L:

"I received a telegram from Kansas City to arrest one of your men now in this city, for murder. Captain McGinnis does not like to assume the responsibility of turning him over to civil authorities. Kindly leve order."

Ing him over to civil authorities. Kindly give order."

"This telegram was not answered. "Detective McNally was sent to Montauk last Tuesday to see Colonel Roosevelt, and after a long delay succeeded in talking with him. He stated that "Seville' would be watched, as he could not be locked up, and promised to surrender him as soon as the requisition papers arrived.

"Last Thursday Acting Chief Lange sent the following telegram to Colonel Roosevelt:

Warrant for "M. Seville." alias James Redmond, of Company I, has arrived. An officer with requisition papers left Kansas City Wednesday. Please give orders to prevent the escape of Seville. He is a dangerous man and will take desperate chances telegram was received this morning

FUNERAL OF FRED LEEDS. Will Be Held This Afternoon and the Remains Will Be Taken to Kokomo, Ind.

Fred D. Leeds, the live stock agent of the Chicago & Alton railroad, whose death from apoplexy Sunday night was announced in The Journal yesterday, was one of the most popular railroad men in Kansas City. He had not been feeling well for several days, and was not at his office on Friday, but did a long day's work on Saturday. He was so well on Saturday night that he contemplated looking after the office alone on Monday and allowing Mr. Pratt, who is his assistant, to go to Chicago. On Sunday afternoon he was out in the garden pulling weeds for a little while. He began to feel sick and started for the house. He sank on his knees on the kitchen doorsill stricken with apoplexy. This was between 4 and 5 o'clock, and, though medical aid was summoned at once, he died at 6 o'clock

Mr. Leeds was born in Kokomo, Ind. Mr. Leeds was born in Kokomo, Ind., thirty-four years ago, and came to Kansas City twelve years ago, when he took a position as chief clerk in the Chicago & Alton freight office. He was promoted to the position he held at the time of his death eight years ago. He stood high with his company, and was invited to be one of the pallhearers at the funeral of General Live Stock Agent John Neshit, who died in Chicago two weeks ago, but was in such poor health that he did not attend. Mrs. Leeds and two children survive him. The funeral services wil he held at the late residence, 3019 East Ninth street, at 5 o'clock this afternoon, after which the remains will be sent to Kokomo, Ind., for burial.

CHRISMAN'S MISTAKE

MAKES ENEMIES OF PROMINENT LEE'S SUMMIT DEMOCRATS.

Gratified His Revenge Yesterday by Defeating the Application of Shawhan & Rowland for Saloon License.

The county court yesterday refused to grant a saloon license to Shawhan & Row-land, of Lee's Summit, and thereby hangs a tale, the denoument of which foreshadjudge and gang candidate for presiding judge of the county court. The country people are already very much disgusted with Chrisman, but the number of his enemies has been very largely increased by enemies has been very largely increased by the action taken yesterday.

Shawhan and Rowland are both Democrats dyed in the wool, and they have many friends, having lived in the vicinity of Lee's Summit for many years. Before the recent Democratic convention they applied for a renewal of their saloon license. Two other applications from friends of Chrisman were granted, but both Rowland and Shawhan were friends of Judge Marsh, who was contesting with Judge Chrisman for the nomination for presiding judge. Chrisman, according to friends of Rowland and Shawhan, set about whipping them into line and man-nation for presiding judge. Chrisman, according to friends of Rowland and Shawhan, set about whipping them into line and managed to defeat the application for a license by striking off names from their petition on various pretexts.

Shawhan and Rowland were kept moving back and forth with their petitions, but each time Chrisman raised objections and succeeded in cutting the list of signers down below the required majority. Finally the men abandoned their attempt in disgust.

After the convention at which Chrisman was nominated, it is alleged that his emissaries approached Shawhan and Rowland and made it very plain to them that if they would get out and "whoop it up" for Chrisman their application would be granted. They were advised to get an attorney to pick some technical flaw in the proceedings which Chrisman would see would be sustained and the political support of the two men would be secured.

Rowland had not had any special opposition to Chrisman, and had merely, he says, supported Marsh in accordance with the right of every man to have his opinions. He consented to support Chrisman after the light was over and Chrisman had won.

But Shawhan, who is one of the oldest and most prominent men in Lee's Summit, flatly refused to be cajoled into supporting Chrisman, and the latter was made to understand this fact very plainly. Chrisman got his revenge yesterday when he succeeded in defeating the application for a saloon license.

Chrisman will lose a great many Democratic verse through the contents and the contents of the support chrisman and contents and support the supporting chrisman will lose a great many Democratic verse through the contents and the succeeded in defeating the support the support contents were the support the support chrisman and the latter was made to understand this fact very plainly. It was decided to have two headquarters, one in Kansas City and the other in Independence. A committee of five members from the city and county, respectively, will be in charge.

The meeting was preceded by a lively encounter between "Raby" Crawford and Committeeman Zimmerman, on account of a telegram sent to Crawford from the Jefferson City convention, saying that the convention was in a deadlock, and the snarl could not be untangled unless Crawford went down.

In return, Mr. Lowe is to quietly reconsider his determination to run independently.

When Jim Reed won his great victory over Shannon and Lowe at the recent Democratic county convention, Lowe was furious. He fairly frothed at the mouth and acted as if bereft of ordinary discretion. He plunged headlong into an erratic system of revenge.

First he announced that he would run independently and thus insure the defeat of his rival. Then he began a ridiculous crusade against the saloon men who had opposed him in the convention. He gave it out from the housetops that he would close all the saloons on Sunday, but the spasm of referre here of Sunday, but the spasm all the saloons on Sunday, but the spasm of reform has ended in a flasco that suc-ceeded the first paroxysm. LABOR DAY PARADE.

Committees Held an Enthusiastic Meeting and Completed Their Arrangements.

Grand Marshal J. O. Walsh, the various division marshals and aides held an enthusiastic meeting with the Labor day committee last night at Labor headquarters. The details of the formation of the Labor day parade were gone over and arranged to the satisfaction of all concerned.

From the interest shown by the labor men already, it is certain that the celebration of Labor day, September 5, this year will be more universal than ever before in the city and that a larger number of laborers will be in line in the parade. Of the fifty-three labor organizations in the city, fifty-one have signified their intention of joining the parade, and the other two have not considered the matter finally as yet.

All of the speakers who have been invited to address the picnic at Fairmount park have accepted the invitations and are expected to be present. mittee last night at Labor headquarters.

It was vesterday afternoon, during the very hottest portion of a very hot day, and the Coates House was enjoying a siesta between trains. Henry Menking, the clerk, was standing directly in the current furnished by a big electric fan, and gazing pensively at the long thermometer as it slowly kept mounting, and wondered how much higher it could possibly go. The bell boys and the porter were also in a state of lassitude which was only broken into by periodical calls for ice water.

They drove up in a carriage. He alighted and tenderly handed the young woman out, and then they were escorted into the ladies waiting room. They sat down and talked quietly for a few moments, and then the man made his way toward the hotel register and Clerk Menking. He was tall and well dressed wore a neat dark suit and a straw hat, and registered the name o "F. B. Cannon, Phillipsburg, Kas." She was Miss Susie Smith from the same place.
"Will you register for the lady?" inquired Clerk Menking, in his most persuasive tone.

"Well, er-er-not just yet," came the response. "You see," with a desperate determination to have it over with, "we're going to be married, and if I put her name down now. I'd have to change it afterward."

"Oh, I see," returned the clerk. "Is there anything that I can do for you?"

"Well, you might get us a minister. We can be married in the hotel, can't we?"

"Yes, indeed," returned Menking, who is a past grand master in affairs of this sort. "You just go back to your wi-girl, I mean, and I'll have things fixed up in a moment." moment."
The news spread through the retunda of the hotel that there was to be a marriage, and every man and woman in the place wanted to lend a helping hand. Miss Taylor, the cashier, who has engineered several marriages in the hotel, said that she knew a minister, and he was immediately sent for. The prospective bride and groom were escerted to the pariors of the hotel, and then everybody waited for the arrival of the minister. He soon made an appearance and immediately went into the parior. Everybody waited impatiently for the doors to be thrown open so they could witness the ceremony. They were finally opened, and the minister emerged, and hurriedly, without a word, left the hotel.

There was wonder in the eyes and minds of every one as to what was wrong. Finally the man came down to the office again, and said:

"I guess you'll have to send for another.

and said:
"I guess you'll have to send for another "I guess you'll have to send for another minister."
"Why, certainly," said Miss Taylor, who could not bear to see any hitch in the affair when it was so near completion. So another minister was sent for. But arain the actions of the first one were repeated, and curiosity was intense as to what was the matter. All sorts of conjectures were rife as to the cause of these most mysterious doings, and the cashier and the telegraph girls were nearly in tears. The young man again slowly descended the stairs, and this time he was met with questioning looks. He seemed to be greatly stairs, and this time he was met with ques-tioning looks. He seemed to be greatly embarrassed, and his face was red. He slowly approached the cashier's window, as if he instinctively recognized a friend therein, and again said: "Will you please send for another min-ister?"

"Why, certainly," came the response, but it was balting and the man fideral shows

"Why, certainly," came the response, but it was halting, and the man fidgeted about, very ill at ease. "Is—is there anything the matter?" inquired the young woman, who evidently did not quite know whether to pity the man or think him the worst sort pity the man or think him the worst sort of a brute.
"Well, I'll just tell you. The fact is that am a divorced man, and some of thes ministers will not marry us. That's all there is to it."

The news was spread and the help of every man and woman in the hotel was invoked. Minister after minister came and went, and still the ceremony was not performed. The stock of clergymen grew short and matters began to look desperate. The and matters began to look desperate. The ladies of the hotel went to console the coming bride, and the prospective groom mingled with the men guests "between ministers." Both parties made very favorable impressions upon the hotel people. ministers." Both parties made very favorable impressions upon the hotel people, and indignation was expressed that an occurrence of the sort should be possible. "I think that it is a sname." said one little woman, the wife of a well known railroad man, indignantly, while Miss Taylor and the telegraph girls were nearly in tears. But there is an end to all things and a minister was finally procured who was broad minded enough to perform the ceremony. Then all was smiles again, the bride who had wiped away the tears from her face was kissed and consoled by the women, and a health was poured off to the ner face was kissed and consoled by the women, and a health was poured off to the happiness of the couple, and they drove off to the depot with the good wishes of every one ringing in their ears.

On the register of the Coates House now appears, "Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Cannon, Phillipsburg, Kas."

SHE MARRIED A BOY. But a Hard Hearted Reform School Superintendent Snatched the Infantile Benedict From Her.

John Henry Lubert, deprived of the se ried yesterday, will spend his honeymoon in the reform school at Boonville. John is 16 years old and has been out of the reform school, where he was sent two and a half months ago for petit Jarceny about two weeks on parole. Superintendent Drake, of the school, having heard yesterday that Lubert was not observing the rules of the parole, came to Kansas City for the purpose of taking him into custody, and, with the assistance of Detectives Keshlear and Lowe, located him in a room in the Grande house at Third street and Grand avenue.

in a room in the Grande house at Third street and Grand avenue.

His wife, until yesterday Sarah Jane Cooper, was with him, and when the detectives walked in on them Lubert was soliciting a youthful friend "to rush the growler" in honor of the nuptial ceremony. When told that he was wanted, Lubert was not a bit nonplussed.

"I guess not!" he replied. "I'm married now, and I'll stay with my wife."

"Married!" chorused the astounded officers. ficers.
"Yes, married!" replied the lad, with a chuckle. "Here's my certificate." "Yes, married!" replied the lad, with a chuckle. "Here's my certificate."
He spread before his visitors an execrably written certificate which set forth that the marriage had taken place at 711 East Second street and that the officiating minister was William R. Vance, "an ordained minister of the Gospel."
"How did you get the license?" Lubert was asked.
"My mother went with me and gave her consent," he replied.

consent," he replied.

Then Mrs. Lubert, who is twice the age of her husband, and has been in matrimonial harness before, took a hand in the Henry Menking, the popular cierk at the Coates House, who has been away on a vacation for the past few weeks, is again at his post, and has assumed quite aldermanic proportions. He vigorously denies the soft impeachment that he is married, that he went away to be married, as was the current report, or that he is at all thinking about being married. When questioned in regard to the matter, he closed all controversy by drawing himself up and saying:

"Do I look like a married man?"

LEVY ON THE POLICE.

Latest Alleged Move of the Opponents of Home Rule-Heelers Fear Discharge. It is stated on reliable authority that the opponents of home rule have decided to levy an assessment on the members of the police force to eke out the sum needed to defray the expenses of the anti-home rule campaign. They have made many members of the police force believe that the success of the home rule amendments, which will be voted on September 6, will mean the dis-charge of every Democrat on the force, recharge of every Democrat on the force, regardless of his record or efficiency. The men who have been on the force for years and have advanced from humble positions to places of honor and responsibility are not scared by this talk, but the political henchmen whose ippointments have paid political debts have good reason to fear the defeat of the managers of the police machine. Every officer on the force knows that the people want men who will attend to their duties and let politics alone. But the pluguidless who have been put on the force to help advance the interests of this or that faction of the Democratic gang or state machine will do their utmost to nake other officers believe that the success of the home rule amendments means a wholesale discharge of efficient members of the force. The hecters who owe their places on the force to the governor's resident managers are all fighting the amendments, but it is a foregone conclusion that home rule will carry 5 to 1.

The home rule campaign will be formally opened by a grand rally at Turner hall next Saturday night, at which prominent speakers, irrespective of political affiliations, will advocate the passage of the home rule amendments. gardiess of his record or efficiency. The orate Pyrotechnics. Councilman W. H. Otto, of the Ninth vard, said yesterday that he would introduce an ordinance at the next meeting of the council appropriating $500 for fireworks and a grand peace jubilee during Carnival "The Journal's suggestion is a splendid one," said Mr. Otto, 'and I am most heartily in favor of it. I believe the city could easily afford to spend this money in welcoming the soldier boys home and celebrating the close of the war."

To Buy the Signal System. Councilman Otto declared himself yester-day in favor of buying the police signal system. He will go before the board of public works next Friday and argue for the adoption of his plan. "The system costs only $6,400," said Mr. Otto yesterday, "and the city pays a rental of over $4,000 a year. This is about 75 per cent, and I think it is a little too much."

AS THE GERMANS SAW IT. How a Dresden Paper Reported the

vera's Fleet. A Kansas City woman who is at present in Europe has written to friends here telling of some of the incidents of her visit in the Old Country. Naturally, there was great anxiety among Americans to get the latest news of the war, and all the papers that could be found were eagerly read for information. That the search was some-times disappointing may be inferred from the description of the destruction of Ad-miral Cervera's fleet, as told by the folmiral Cervera's fleet, as told by the fol-lowing, a literal translation from the Dresden Zeitung, one of the leading pa-pers of Saxony:

"As the General Cervera came from the harbor of Santiago de Cuba out, he was by the 'Gloucester,' one small boat of the American fleet, pursued with the result that two of the ships of the Admiral Cer-vera in the air flew, and were by fire dethat two of the same of the Adminiat Cer-vera in the air flew, and were by fire de-stroyed. After that the flag-hip of the General Cervera had some distance sailed and on the rocks been cast.'
